3. Write down at least three criticisms of edutainment.

4. Write down two positive aspects of edutainment.

3 Focus on grammar → Talking about ability, permission and necessity a A teacher is introducing tablets to his class and explaining how they should be used. Fill in can, may, must, should, needn't or mustn't. For some sentences more than one solution is possible.

1. You _____ use the tablets in lessons, but you _____ always ask me first.
2. You _____ use the tablets for your schoolwork, and not for games!
3. You _____ use the internet for your research, but you _____ download anything without checking with me first.
4. You _____ create a passcode for your tablet. I have already done this.
5. These tablets _____ really help you if you use them properly.
6. You _____ take anybody's picture without asking them first.

b Below are some differing opinions on technology at schools. Use substitute forms of the modal verbs underlined to make sentences with the same meaning.

1. Technology is important. It is essential that children can use modern devices confidently.

2. You must introduce technology at schools but you needn't do it from such a young age.

3. Must 7-year-olds really know how to use a tablet?

4. When I was at school, there was only one computer and we couldn't use it.

5. I'm 57 and I'm not able to do anything on a computer, so now I must learn. I wish I could have used technology at school.
